One of these Mitzvot is not like the Others

Rabbi Tzvi Sinensky
Rabbi, Albert Einstein College of Medicine Community, Bronx, NY

It is widely acknowledged that three mitzvot fulfill the mandate of pirsumei nisa, publicizing the holiday’s miracle: reading the megillah on Purim, drinking the four cups on Pesach and lighting the menorah on Chanukah. Indeed, these identifications are explicit in the Gemara (Berachot 14a; Megilla 3b, 18a; Shabbat 23b; Pesachim 108b).33 34

It is therefore startling that we find a number of differences between these mitzvot. The first concerns the audience of the pirsum. With respect to the megillah, it is clear that the requirement is to share the story with fellow Jews. When it comes to the four cups, it similarly appears that we are relaying the narrative to a Jewish audience. However, there are indications that the lighting of the menorah “spreads the light” not only to Jews but to non-Jews as well. The Talmud records (Shabbat 21b) that one may light the menorah until the Tarmodeans have left the marketplace. Rashi explains:

The feet of the Tarmodeans: This is the name of a nation, who collected thin branches, and would tarry in the marketplace until the people of the market would return home after nightfall.

According to Rashi, the Tarmodeans were a non-Jewish population. Rav Soloveitchik35 infers that according to Rashi, the pirsumei nisa of ner chanukah is universal in scope; we narrate the story to all humankind. The question begs itself: if all three mitzvot are characterized as pirsumei nisa, why do we find such a dramatic discrepancy?36

33 The Gemara Berachot 14a also identifies the recitation of Hallel as involving pirsumei nisa, but we will leave Hallel aside for the purposes of our discussion.
34 According to Rav Moshe Soloveitchik (Harerei Kedem, Vol. I), it is for this reason that R. Yehoshua Ben Levi mentions only these three mitzvot as incumbent upon women, because af hen hayu be’oto ha-nes, they too were included in the miracle. The principle of af hen is limited to mitzvot of pirsum.
36 A third piece to this puzzle is the halacha of mechirat kesuto, that a pauper must sell his clothing in order to fulfill certain mitzvot of pirsumei nisa. This is an exception to the general principle that one need not cede more on one-fifth of his assets to fulfill a positive commandment. This halacha appears in the Gemara only in reference to the arbah kosot (Pesachim 108b). Interestingly, Rambam codifies this halacha with respect to both arbah kosot (Hilchot Chametz U-Matzah 7:7) and Ner Chanukah (Hilchot Chanukah 4:13). Moreover, he never mentions the principle
Additionally, in light of the pirsum motif, we might have assumed that all three require a quorum of ten individuals, as a minyan generally satisfies the requirement of a halachik public gathering. But this is not the case. With respect to the four cups, there is no requirement of a minyan. When it comes to ner chanukah, we once again find no need for 10 individuals – with the singular exception of the widespread custom of lighting the menorah in shul, where the necessity of a minyan is widely accepted.37

In sharp contrast, the Talmud (Megillah 5a) addresses the requisite of ten men for keri’at ha-megillah. Rav distinguishes between communities that read the megillah on the 14th or 15th of Adar, which do not require the presence of ten men, and the Talmudic-era towns that read the megillah on the 11th through the 13th of Adar,38 which do require a minyan. R. Assi, however, maintains that a minyan is always necessary, even in a community that reads on the 14th or 15th.39

Rashi (s.v. bizmanah, she-lo bizmanah, ve-Rav Assi) and others (Milchamot Hashem 3a be’Alfas, Mordechai Megilla 782) ground the requirement of ten in pirsumei nisa considerations. Indeed, R. Zerachia Ha-Levi (Ba’al Ha-Ma’or Megilla 3a be’Alfas) maintains as a matter of practical halacha that one cannot fulfill the mitzvah even b’dieved unless a quorum is present, based on the principle of pirsumei nisa.40 What emerges is that keri’at ha-megillah is unique, as only here – not regarding the menorah or the four cups – do we encounter the possibility that a minyan is required. If the term pirsumei nisa truly applies to all three mitzvot, why is mikra megillah unlike all the others?41
I believe that the key to this enigma lies in Rambam’s treatment of this topic. Let us begin with his discussion of ner chanukah:

(12) The mitzvah of ner chanukah is very precious. One must be cautious to publicize the miracle and to increase the praise of God and thanksgiving to Him for the miracles He has performed on our behalf. Even one who only receives food from charity must lend or sell his clothing, purchase oil and wicks, and light.

(13) One who has only a single coin, and kiddush and ner chanukah stand before him, purchases oil to light the Chanukah candles… for it involves a commemoration of the miracle.

Rambam Hilchot Chanukah Chapter 4

Here Rambam presents a classic formulation of pirsumei nisa: “to make the miracle known and to increase the praise of God.” Rambam derives from this unique quality of ner chanukah that: a) this mitzvah is “extremely beloved,” b) a poor person must be willing to lend or sell the shirt off his back in order to fulfill the mitzvah, and c) the mitzvah of ner chanukah precedes that of wine for Kiddush.

We now turn to Rambam’s treatment of the four cups on the Seder night:

(6) In every generation one is obligated to demonstrate himself as if he himself exited now from Egyptian bondage, as it says, “And He brought us out from there.” Regarding this matter God commanded in the Torah, “You shall remember that you were a slave.” In other words, as if you yourself were a slave, left to freedom and were redeemed.

(7) Therefore when one dines on this evening, he must eat and drink and recline in the fashion of freedom. And every individual, men and women, must drink on this night four cups of wine, not less. Even a pauper who is supported by charity – the [community] must not give him less than four cups.

Rambam Hilchot Chametz U-Matzah, Chapter 7

Here, Rambam stresses that the obligation is le-har’ot – to outwardly demonstrate – the miracle, for one is meant to reenact the events of the redemption as if they had just occurred. What emerges is that the concept of pirsumei nisa as applied to the four cups differs fundamentally from that of Chanukah: Whereas in the context of Chanukah, the goal is to publicize the miracle to others, in the case of the four cups, the essence of the mitzvah is to re-experience the miracle. For this reason, we are obligated to ensure that the pauper partakes of the four cups like all others.

692:1, Bei’ur Halacha s.v. ela). This seems to reflect the broader significance of a minyan with respect to mikra megillah.
We have identified the meaning of pirsumei nisa with respect to ner chanukah and arbah kosot. How are we to define this characteristic with respect to keriat ha-megillah?42

To analyze the pirsum element as it applies to the megillah, let us return to our first question: Why is it that of the three mitzvot, only mikra megillah likely requires a minyan? Perhaps the answer is that what distinguishes the reading of the megillah from all the others is the communal dimension of the mitzvah. Thus, the term pirsumei nisa in context of mikra megillah carries a third meaning: this mitzvah is ideally performed in context of a tzibbur. And because it is ideally a communal mitzvah, the pirsumei nisa of the megillah is addressed specifically to a Jewish audience, as opposed to the pirsum of ner chanukah, which, according Rav Soloveitchik’s interpretation of Rashi, aims at any passerby.

Why? Of all these holidays, Purim is the only one in which the entirety of k’lal yisrael played a crucial role in the salvation. In the case of Chanukah, it was not the entire community that fought the battles and rededicated the Temple, but specifically the members of the Hasmonae family. Regarding Pesach, while it is true that God required the Jewish people to perform an act of faith in sprinkling the blood on the doorposts, there are clear indications that His decision to redeem the Jewish people was more about the promise made to our forefathers or God’s kindness than our great merit at the time of the Exodus.43 Thus the role of k’lal yisrael is limited with respect to Chanukah and Pesach.

However, in the case of Purim, Mordechai calls upon the entire Jewish community of Shushan to fast for three days and three nights (Esther 4:16). Moreover, many Jewish communities played an active role in physically defending themselves (Esther 9:1-18), and, recognizing the spiritual significance of the military victory, they refused to collect the spoils (Esther 9:10, 15-16).44 Remarkably, the Megilla indicates that the people themselves declared Purim a holiday (Esther 9:17-20, 23). In fact, according to Ramban, residents of unwalled cities read the Megilla a day before members of walled cities because the unwalled cities were poorly protected from the enemy. The degree of Divine providence was therefore greater in those more vulnerable locations. In the years following the miracle, the unwalled cities’ residents accepted upon themselves an earlier day of celebration, recognizing the precariousness of their situation and therefore the higher level of gratitude owed to God. This acceptance was subsequently endorsed by contemporary rabbinic leadership:

They saw fit to precede the unwalled cities to the walled cities, for their miracle was greater, and they initiated the mitzvah first to establish for themselves a holiday.

Ramban Megilla 2a

42 It is fascinating to note that in his halakhic compendium Mishneh Torah, Rambam never clearly invokes the concept of pirsumei nisa with respect to Mikra Megilla. However, Rambam perhaps alludes to the pirsum motif in his introduction to Mishneh Torah.

43 See, for example, Yechezkel 20:6-10.

44 See R. Bachaye Shemot 17:14, Ralbag Shmuel I 15:6, B’nei Yisachar, Ma’amarei Chodsh Adar, Perek 6. See, however, Rashi Esther 9:10, who argues that the Jews did not collect the spoils so as not to arouse the jealousy of Achashveirosh.
Here too we have an instance of a community enhancing the holiday of Purim by taking the initiative and establishing a day of thanksgiving to ha-Kadosh Baruch Hu.

Finally, some maintain that immediately before setting out to battle, the people joined in communal prayer. The Gemara Megilla 2a identifies the 13th day of Adar as z’man kehilla la-kol, a time of gathering for all. While Rashi (2a s.v. z’man) understands that the people came together to engage in battle, Rosh (Megilla 1:1) quotes Rabbeinu Tam as rejecting Rashi and maintaining that on the 13th of Adar – what eventually became known as Ta’anit Esther – the Jewish community joined in communal prayer. Thus, according to Rabbeinu Tam’s interpretation, Ta’anit Esther highlights the communal engagement of k’lal yisrael in the process of redemption.

For this reason, it makes perfect sense that the mitzvot of Purim are intended to highlight the theme of community. Arguably, this motif underlies the mitzvot of matanot la’evyonim and mishlo’ach manot, both of which serve to enhance relationships among various members of the community. Furthermore, as we have demonstrated, the nature of the primary mitzvah of Purim, keriat ha-megillah, is fashioned after the manner in which the events of Purim unfolded. Just as the Jewish community played an integral role in the events of Purim, so too we are bidden to read the megillah as a community. As we have seen, the pirsumei nisa dimension of mikra megillah – in contrast to ner chanukah and arbah kosot – is specifically constructed so as to accent this communal dimension.

In the merit of our joining together as a community in celebration of Purim, may we witness a time when we no longer need to join together as a community in prayer and self-defense, for we will find our communal shelter beneath the wings of the shechina.